HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST FROM DIFFERENT SECTIONS

The registration at the summer school at Johnson Normal numbered 225 on the third day.

Mrs. G. B. Brown of Fair Haven has an emerald plant containing 365 blossoms.

In the 45 girls at Camp Winneshauka, 13 states and 13 different colleges and private schools are represented.

Because the dock needs repairing the Champlain steamers will not touch at St. Albans this summer. The dock will be fixed in the fall.

A pocketbook containing $47 was stolen from the house of Joseph Toubant in Winooki during Tuesday night, and some silverware was also taken.

Mrs. Pearl M. Jilson of Wilmington, a trained nurse, was cut about the shoulders when a car she was driving ran into a ditch as the steering gear broke.

From money contributed for the 4th of July celebration in Everts, $8.80 was left unused, and this amount has been turned over to the Everts baseball team.

Clark Kelley of Bennington, while riding a bicycle Sunday, was hit by an automobile driven by Thomas Healey of Manchester Depot and his left ankle was broken in two places.

While running a lathe in the C. H. Willard mill in Townshend Wednesday, Walter Morse in some way was caught in the belt, his leg being drawn in and both bones broken below the knee.

A warrant was served on C. D. Boydon of Townsend Friday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff W. M. Sparks charging him with assault upon E. R. Batchelder of that town. Both are well known men. They had an argument and the state alleges that Batchelder was struck by Boydon.

The following men successfully passed the state dental examinations at Montpelier, June 26, 27 and 28, and are qualified to practice dentistry in the state of Vermont: Edmond Leonide Desautels, of Dover, N. H.; Arthur Feinberg of New York City; Will Austin Shattuck of Bristol, Harry W. Burns of Middlebury, Allen C. McBride of St. Regis Falls, N. Y.; George Frederic Seguin of St. Henry, Montreal, P. Q.; Matthew A. Meagher of Bennington, Frank J. Nelson, jr., of West Pawlet, and Clifton E. Killary of Burlington.

The Buick touring car of F. C. Sherburne of St. Johnsbury, driven by Preston Connor, was damaged to the extent of $235 last Wednesday night, when, to avoid collision with a heavy car which persisted in remaining in the middle of the road, Connor steered his machine into a fence. With him were four other young men, all of whom had been to Barre to attend the baseball game between Montpelier and Barre. None of the party was injured except by flying glass from the broken windshield. The loss on the car is covered by insurance. The other auto did not slacken its speed and passed out of sight.

Automobile accidents are numerous near Hartland Friday evening, July 7. A Claremont car collided with the side of a bridge at North Hartland, badly damaging the car but not injuring the occupants. That morning a Maxwell car owned and driven by L. S. Hayes of Bellows Falls collided on a bridge with a Ford, whose occupants, two women, refused to give their names. They were said to be from Massachusetts. One was quite severely injured and the other had a broken arm and collar. Both cars were badly damaged and Mr. Hayes, who was on his way to Montpelier, was obliged to go by train. Tuesday morning a Massachusetts car skidded and was badly broken. Two women, occupants, whose names could not be learned were taken to the hospital. One had a fractured arm and the other was bruised and cut.

Baseball Briefs.

Lawton Witt, crack shortstop for the Mackmen, is suffering a bruised finger on his right hand, and though he has begged Connie Mack to let him hang out to the game with his finger bandaged, Mack is playing it safe. He took Witt on an X-ray specialist, but the smashed member shows little sign of healing. The loss of Witt from the infield and the offensive is to a great extent the reason for the bad slump the Athletics have recently had.

FOREST PROBLEM OF SOUTH.

Chief Forester of United States Discusses the Features.

In an address before the southern forestry congress at Asheville on July 11, Henry S. Graves, chief forester of the United States, emphasized the importance of the timber supply of the South and pointed out methods by which it may be perpetuated.

"Nowhere in the whole United States," said Mr. Graves, "can the naval stores industry or the protection of hardwood timber be carried on with the same natural and economic advantages as in the Southeast. Forests occupy more than half the total land area of the South. Southern pine is the principal softwood used in fully two-thirds of the country east of the plains. Backed by a supply of some 325 billion feet of yellow pine and about 30,000 sawmills, the pine industry holds today a commanding place in the country's lumber markets. By their very magnitude the forest problems of the South command attention."

"In addition to the value of the timber the southern pines," said Mr. Graves, "furnish annually about 35 million dollars' worth of turpentine, rosin, etc. This income is in danger of being entirely lost through failure properly to care for and perpetuate the forests."

"The turpentine industry of southern France is a man-made industry. A century ago the barren sand-dunes could be bought at any price one was willing to pay. To-day the poorest pine land covered with two-year seedlings sells for $9. Stocked with 30-year-old pine it is worth $80, and with 50-year-old pine $160 an acre. In this country the turpentine industry has had the advantage of a great natural forest. Instead of being founded and preserved by the diligence of men its destruction will be brought about unless steps are taken to perpetuate it. The growing of timber for turpentine purposes is a profitable undertaking at present."

Sixty-one per cent of the present hardwood supply of the country is located in the south, Mr. Graves pointed out. Moreover, many of the most important hardwoods are supplied wholly by the southern forests. The Appalachian region now produces about fifty per cent of the hardwoods used in the country, and forms the chief remaining source of supply. At the present rate of cutting the existing supply of high-grade hardwood timber will not last many years. Under proper methods, however, the southern Appalachian region alone can be made to grow four-fifths of the hardwood timber which we now require.

There is great need, said Mr. Graves, for more of the states to provide for forest fire prevention under the Weeks law, in co-operation with the national government. The lumber companies should also combine to prevent fires in their holdings. "This can best be done by protective associations such as have been formed elsewhere."

Once the fire problem is controlled the possibilities of forestry in the South are almost unlimited. When the people of the South wake up to the value of the resources at stake and take necessary steps to prevent their destruction and waste, the forests of the South may be made to yield a continuous lumber and other products.

Raising Future Cows.

In selecting calves for future cows, do not imagine that any and all, regardless of size, build and type, will make good paying cows. It costs no more, at least not much more, to raise a good cow than to raise a scrub, writes G. A. Randall in Farm and Home. The care and feeding bestowed upon the calf determine to a great extent what the future cow will be. Beefy or short-legged calves, or those with short bodies should not be saved for cows; only those possessing rangy frames, should be kept.

The care and feed of the calf are all important, for here hinges, to a great extent, success or failure. The first feed should be whole milk, fresh and warm from the cow, fed morning and at night. For the first week, depending upon size, feed from two to three quarts at a ration. Underfed, by all means, rather than overfed during the first critical week. Overfeeding produces scours, from which no calf can gain "make good." When one week old the amount should gradually be increased, ever watchful to leave the calf hungry; at two weeks feed warm separated milk, to which is stirred in a handful of corn meal, boiled to a thin gruel in water.

Increase the amount gradually until at six or eight weeks of age the calf can readily take from four to six quarts at a feed. To the milk add one pig or more of gruel. Never feed cold milk, nor on the other hand, over-warm rations. Lukewarm is about the right temperature. At this time a pinch of salt may be added twice each week.

In one corner of the pen nail a small box at a convenient height for the calf, in which place a pint of dry, whole oats. Calves are very inquisitive at this age, and soon learn to eat this kind of feeds. The oats ration should not be increased until the calf is two or three months' old, but in the meantime small dabs of bright mixed hay, corn fodder, etc., may be placed in a rack easily reached. Above all feed regularly.

WOOD WASTE EXCHANGE

Is Being Extensively Taken Advantage Of.

Extensive use by lumbermen and wood-working factories of the wood waste exchange reported by officials who have just completed a short field study to determine the extent to which the opportunities offered are being taken advantage of. Only a small per cent of the total number of concerns listed were visited, but a comparatively large number were found to have benefited by the exchange.

Makers of wooden novelties, it is said, have been particularly successful in finding supplies of material near their plants. Other wood-working industries have been able to dispose of their waste at higher prices than they could otherwise have obtained. Many of the firms were located within short distances of each other, but until recently have had no way of getting together.

The wood waste exchange was established by the forest service in 1914. It consists of two lists of manufacturers, which are sent out quarterly to persons desiring them. One of these is "Opportunities to Sell Waste" and contains the names of firms which use sawdust and small pieces of wood. This list is sent to plants having waste for sale. The other is "Opportunities to Buy Waste" and gives the names of concerns which have waste to dispose of. This list is sent to firms who wish to buy material.

There is no charge for the service and any manufacturer who wishes to have his name added to either list can do so by writing to the forest service, Washington, D. C. A list of waste problems which the exchange has proved an effective means of meeting can also be obtained by anyone who cares to ask for it.
